MRS. TRAHERN PASSES OVER

After Brief Illness and Brave
Fight Succumbs Today

EARLINGTON GRIEF STRICKEN
FOR THE BEREAVED ONE

A beautiful life drifted out across the bar at two o'clock this afternoon, Tuesday, December 5, 1911, and now the hopes and hearts of many loving relatives and friends are bruised and bleeding. Mrs. Edgar Morris Trahern died in the St. Bernard Hospital with her stricken husband, mother, sisters and brothers about her to the end. The family gathered at the hospital about midnight and the sufferer called them all to her bedside after 1 o'clock this morning and told them goodbye, comforting them as best she could. One touching incident was the presence, at Mrs. Trahern's request, of Mrs. John Long, her close, girlhood friend and who was asked by the patient to sing for her more than once during the early morning hours. She became unconscious shortly after 2 o'clock this morning and the end was looked for momentarily. She had fought bravely and with fine resistance, since the operation for appendicitis Tuesday of last week, and for most of this time love, and hope and strong desire would not take the fateful, adverse answer all hearts about her feared. Mrs. Trahern's mother, Mrs. A. J. Stokes, was overcome and stricken with grief and despair yesterday.

"Miss Werdna," as the Earlington folks all liked to call her, was a young woman of attractive and winning personality, earnest and sincere in all she did or said, but full of the joy and grace of youth. She was capable in the home, a favorite in the social life of the community, and a devoted member of and worker in the Methodist church and Sunday School.

Mrs. Trahern was twenty-six years old April 12, 1911, one of nine children of Mrs. A. J. Stokes, of this place, widow of the late Judge Stokes, of this place. Werdna Stokes was born in Earlington April 12, 1885, and was educated here, and here she spent her useful though short life in the simplicity and parity of loving, daily service to those about her.

She is survived by her husband, Edgar Morris Trahern, her mother, Mrs. A. J. Stokes; five sisters, Mrs. Earnest Newton, Mrs. Albert Keown, Mrs. Elmo Shaver, Mrs. C. J. Hutchinson and Miss

HONOR MEMORY OF LODGE'S DEAD

Madisonville and Earlington Elks Hold
Annual Exercises in Christian Church Sunday Afternoon

Impressive memorial services in honor of the dead of Madisonville B. P. O. E. lodge No. 738 were held Sunday afternoon in the Christian church. The principal address was made by Hon. Everett Jennings, of Chicago. An appropriate exercise of song was carried out. The large Christian church was filled to overflowing, and the congregation had the pleasure of listening to one of the best addresses ever made on like occasion.

Grocery Changes Hands

Mr. Theodore Watts, who formerly worked in the "Company Store," has purchased the grocery of C. O. Wilkie. Mr. Wilkie has not been in grocery business long, but during the time he conducted a very successful business. As Mr. Watts has a great deal of experience along the grocery line we are sure it will be a first class grocery, and wish him every success in his new business.

Popular Madisonville Man Married at Hopkinsville

The many friends of Mr. Cliff Pritchett were surprised to hear of his marriage to Miss Mabel Bowels, of Hopkinsville, who is the attractive daughter of Richard Bowels. Mr. Pritchett is a member of the firm of Pritchett Bros. and is an enterprising young man. They will make their home for the present with his father, Frank Pritchett, of Madisonville.

The Bee joins with their many friends in wishing them a happy and successful life.

HUNT BOMB-PLOT---MEN HIGHER UP

"Fight is Only Begun," says Counsel for Erectors' Association, Which Ran Down Conspiracy

James B. McNamara May be Sent to Gallows by Judge Bordwell

CONFESSION MADE ONLY TO SAVE McNAMARAS LIFE

Attorney Darrow Said "There was no Possibility of Escape"

New York, Dec. 2.—"The fight has only just begun. This is only the first chapter. What we want to find out is who were the men behind the McNamara, and this we propose to do."

This statement was made today by Walter Drew, chief counsel for the National Erectors' Association, which employed William J. Burns and his detectives to investigate the Los Angeles dynamiting case.

"The McNamaras in pleading guilty have said that they were sent out there and acted for a principle," Mr. Drew continued. "It is obvious that the men representing this 'principle' have kept them well supplied with money. It is to find out who these men are that becomes the important issue from now on."

Federal Inquiry Is Important
Mr. Drew emphasized the importance of the federal investigation now under way at Indianapolis.

"Compared with this the prosecution of the McNamaras is a side issue," he continued. "We of the National Erectors' Association have no personal malice against the McNamaras, and hope that clemency will be extended to them. We too, are fighting for a principle, just as they were."

"The big principle behind it all, on our part, is the prosecution of the men who paid the McNamaras and countenanced and instigated this outrage."

"I have every reason to believe the federal authorities will continue a rigid investigation of the case. The National Erectors' Association will, of course, give every aid possible. There will also be cooperation with the Los Angeles authorities."

"The whole thing is a national issue, and the sooner union labor frees itself of the criminal element the better it will be for labor; and the sooner the country realizes that it is such an issue the better and the sooner the problem will be put on its proper footing."

Judge Not in on Compromise

that the first shock of surprise occasioned by the unexpected confessions of James B. and John J. McNamara is over. Interest is increasing momentarily in the probable punishment that will be meted out to them.

While it is practically admitted both by District Attorney Fredericks' staff and counsel for the defense that the confessions were the result of a compromise, it is equally well known that Judge Bordwell, who will sentence the prisoners next Tuesday morning, was not a party to whatever agreement led to the sudden ending of the trial.

In other words, while District Attorney Fredericks undoubtedly has promised counsel for the defense to recommend clemency for the prisoners, and if possible to save James B. McNamara from the gallows for the Times murders, final judgment in the case still rests with Judge Bordwell. It is for him to say whether James B. McNamara shall be hanged and John J. McNamara serve a term in prison so long as to be practically a life sentence.

State Can Only Recommend
If the state asks moderation and recommends a life sentence for James B. McNamara and a limited term for his brother, it will have kept faith with the defense. It can do no more, and there are those who expect that Judge Bordwell will hesitate to agree to anything less than a death sentence for James B. McNamara.

These men point out that the compromise, so far as the defense was concerned, was a plain case of Hobson's choice. They support their contention with Attorney Darrow's own words—"the state had gathered in every loophole; there was no possibility of escape."

Federal Officers Map Case For Grand Jury
Indianapolis, Dec. 2.—Investigation of the McNamara dynamiting conspiracy announce to be along lines that may uncover violations by certain associates of the McNamara brothers of the federal statute governing interstate transportation of dynamite was continued today by agents of the Department of Justice here without interruption by the plea of guilty by the McNamaras in Los Angeles.

Accountants have been busy with records and correspondence of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers in the documents were taken over by order of federal Judge A. B. Anderson.

Clocks, fuses and flaming caps seized in the raid on the offices of the association when J. J. McNamara was arrested are locked in vaults in the federal building.

Many pounds of dynamite, also confiscated in the raid, are in charge of the federal authorities and remain in a secret depository said to be on the outskirts of this city.

Evidence of "Staging" to Overwhelm Defense

Los Angeles, Dec. 2.—That there was politics in the acceptance of the McNamara's plea of guilty at this time is quietly admitted by both sides today, but the real inside of the agreement to end the trial by confessions is withheld.

Advocates of the present municipal administration in Los Angeles are openly rejoicing. They declare that one result of the plea of guilty following the arrest of Bert Franklin, chief investigator for the McNamara defense on charges of bribery and the exhibition by District Attorney Fredericks of $4,000 in bills as the actual bribe money will be the defeat of Job Harriman, Socialist and union labor candidate for mayor.

The Harrimanites declare that the Alexander forces were "on the run" when this blow fell on the friends of labor.

It was admitted that Harriman was gaining strength rapidly and it seemed probable that he would be swept into the executive chair at Tuesday's election. With him the Socialists expected to put into power a Socialist city council, and it was pledged, as its first act, to repeal the city anti-picketing ordinance which makes it a felony to picket a shop or building where there is a strike. In addition, the Socialists would have gained control of the police department, which they allege is now antagonistic to unionism.

How Confession was Obtained

Friends of Harriman say the sensational episodes of yesterday were planned by "big business." They assert bitterly that everything was staged for the effect it would have on the election. They assert that the plan was laid as follows:

After the arrest of Franklin for bribery District Attorney Fredericks showed his hand. He sent a man into the courtroom who sat down where he could see J. B. McNamara as he sat lounging easily beside his counsel Monday afternoon. A few minutes later another man joined him.

They had been sitting, looking steadily at the defendant for more than half an hour before they caught his eye. McNamara flushed when he saw them and finally called over Joseph Scott of defense coun-

NIGHT RIDER CASES SETTLED

Partially and Action is Dismissed
as to Fifty-six of the Defendant

COUNSEL DECLINES TO TALK

The suit of Mrs. Elsie Gaylord Latham, of New York, against Dr. D. A. Amoss and 108 other alleged night riders, for the collection of $50,000 damages, which the plaintiff claims to be due her by reason of the defendants burning the tobacco warehouse belonging to her husband at Hopkinsville, has been dismissed without prejudice as to 56 of the alleged night riders and has been continued till the next May term as to the other defendants. Although the attorneys for the two parties decline to make any announcement of the consideration, it is generally understood that the fifty six defendants made up a pool of $5,000, for which amount they secured the compromise, while the remaining defendants declined to abide by such an agreement, and the case as to them was continued generally. It is also stated that further negotiations will be entered into between the parties looking toward the settlement of the litigation and the terms for the payment of the costs in the case are yet to be decided. Some doubt was expressed as to the compromise with the fifty six defendants, owing to the fact that the case was dismissed without prejudice, but it is stated that this order was entered because of the fact that the consideration has not yet been paid, but that as soon as it is paid, the order will be amended so that the dismissal as to the fifty six defendants will be made final. The attorneys for the plaintiff were Senators W. O. Bradley and John Stiggs, while Judge W. T. Fowler, Judge Thomas P. Cook and John W. Kelly were the attorneys for the defendants. Owing to the prominence of all of the parties and to the fact that the suit is the outgrowth of a raid that was made on the city of Hopkinsville during the tobacco war of 1907, the case has attracted a great amount of attention and there were about 200 witnesses and attendants at the court who were interested in the case.

comment is unnecessary. Special mention should be made of the welcome address on behalf of the city by Hon. Frank D. Rysh, Supt. of the St. Bernard Mining Co. Mr. Rysh made us feel that there is no "Mason and Dixon Line;" that the hospitality of our Southern friends is just as broad and their words of welcome are just as hearty as any of our Northern Philanthropists. As we listened to those earnest words of welcome we were made to feel that he must indeed have been a faithful disciple to our own lamented Hon. J. B. Atkinson.

We were also delighted to listen to the address delivered by Hon. P. M. Moore, Trustee of Board of Education on the common schools," and to see the interest he is taking in the schools of our district.

Dr. G. C. Parker's response was eloquent and to the point.

After the sectional meeting Saturday morning at the school house we then listened to some timely remarks by Prof. J. W. Martin, president of Atkinson College. At 11:00 o'clock a. m. the teachers in a body marched to the Baptist Church where a large and enthusiastic audience listened to one of the most practical, profound and eloquent lectures ever heard in Earlington.

The speaker of the occasion was Prof. Frank L. Williams, principal of the Summer High School, St. Louis, Mo. His subject was, "Vocational Training." He said we had had 2500 years of civilization to work on and we might live as long as Methuselah but could never learn everything; hence we should have "Vocational Training."

He emphasized the importance of individual enlightenment and individual training for service. He expressed the importance of inter-weaving the interest of the school with that of the community in which it exists.

He said that the old schools of New England were not fitted to suit our purposes. They only prepared the classes who in turn oppressed the masses.

The speaker emphasized the fact that the schools we need are schools for everybody. Schools that will prepare an individual for his vocation, whether that be cooking, laundering, blacksmithing, mining, farming, teaching, preaching or any other profession.

The speaker said that there is a special culture in all of these courses and the economic condition must be studied in pursuing any course.

He said the kind of education needed should seek to meet the needs of the people educated and find the possible efficiency of the student. The environment of the student should be made the best possible.

He said that study and work should be correlated; that separate

The speaker said Vocation education gives motive; ought to give a chance; gives recognition; makes producers not consumers; dignifies; and gives a passion to achieve things. He told the teachers that they are the prophets of the people and that it is theirs to point out the signs of the time.

The speaker held his audience spell-bound for one hour. All who heard Prof. Williams were loud in their praise of him as a great lecturer and a safe leader in the educational world.

After the lecture the time was extended that we might hear the reports of the committees.

Upon the recommendation of the committee on nomination of officers, Prof. J. I. Bryant was elected president, Miss Stoner secretary and Prof. H. C. Brooks, treasurer.

Upon the recommendation of the committee on resolutions, a vote of thanks was extended to all who in any way assisted in entertaining the association. The Association adjourned to meet in Morganfield the next day after Thanksgiving 1912.

The man who whispers down a well

Will never reap a crop of dollars

See There was a whispered conference, and while it was in progress the two men left the courtroom.

What J. B. McNamara told Scott did not develop until today. The men who had watched him so intently in court had met the prisoner as he went into Ink alley at the Times building on that dark night more than a year ago. They had spoken to him and he to them. McNamara had with him at that moment of the meeting the bomb whose explosion a few hours later sent 21 innocent souls into eternity.

Realizes Cause is Lost

The murderer realized this when he saw the men in court. He knew the absolute proof that he had feared was at hand and that the chain about him had at last been clinched. And he told his counsel so. This was the last link in the chain—the missing witness had turned up.

Then, it is alleged, Fredericks permitted Attorney Darrow and his associates to see more of the strength of the state case. The hotel registers signed by McNamara as J. B. Brice; the two women who saw him go forth on the fatal night with two suit cases containing the deadly explosives; the eyewitness, and last, but most powerful of all, evidence the state had collected implicating certain persons in the alleged bribery attempt by Franklin, were displayed.

It was made plain to the defense attorneys that unless the prisoners entered plea of guilty immediately the fight would go on to the bitter end. J. C. McNamara would be hanged and his brother would be forced to face a trial to save himself from the gallows, while every person concerned in the alleged bribery would feel the heavy hand of the law.

Henry Asserts Burns Expected To Die Next

Pueblo, Colo., Dec. 2.—Francis J. Heney of San Francisco, addressing the Pueblo teachers here last night, said that while he knew the McNamaras were guilty, the confession came as a surprise to him. "Detective Burns explained to me in Chicago what evidence he had," said Heney. "He asked that in the event of his murder, which, he said, he expected would be his portion for so vigorously prosecuting the brothers and their accomplices, I might know who did it and prosecute them."

Death Angels Visit Earlington

Effie Stokes; and three brothers, Earnest, Jack, and Clay Stokes; all of this place. It seems remarkable that a family of such numbers should have remained so long in the same community and its numbers be so long unbroken. In this, the first break in the circle since the death of the father, the family has the deepest sympathy of the whole people of this community; and our hearts go out especially and in the most feeling sympathy to the young man, her husband, who must bow under this supreme grief of his life.

Mr. and Mrs. Trahern were married January, 21st, 1908, a little less than three years ago, and only just now gone to house-keeping on West Main street.

Funeral arrangements are not yet announced.

Fishy But Good

Talk about the benefits of advertising. Down in Florida not long ago a family lost a child which they supposed had strayed away from the home and got lost. After searching in vain for three days the frantic parents placed an advertisement in the nearest newspaper. Imagine the surprise of the parents upon going to the door the next morning to see a monster alligator upon the door steps where he had disgorged the child alive and then died himself. The ad. cost them but 25 cents, and it gave them back their darling child; they sold the alligator hide for $5 and the parents are now showing the child in all the museums of the land at $50 per week. Does advertising pay?

Instead of Liquid Antiseptics or Peroxide

many people are now using

Paxtine Toilet Antiseptic

The new toilet germicide powder to be dissolved in water as needed. For all toilet and hygienic uses it is better and more economical. To cleanse and whiten the teeth, remove tartar and prevent decay. To disinfect the mouth, destroy disease germs, and purify the breath. To keep artificial teeth and bridgework clean, odorless. To remove nicotine from the teeth and purify the breath after smoking. To eradicate perspiration and body odors by sponge bathing. The best antiseptic wash known. Relieves and strengthens tired, weak, inflamed eyes. Heals sore throat, wounds and cuts. 25 and 50 cts. a box, druggists or by mail postpaid. Sample Free. THE PAXTON TOILET CO., BOSTON, MASS.

BURNS IS ON TRAIL M'NAMARA FUND

Detective Seeking Evidence How $1,000 a Month Was Financed

FRANK M. RYAN SOUGHT IN VAIN

President of International Association Iron-Workers Cannot be Found

Indianapolis, Dec. 4.—Detective William J. Burns is now lost to public view, but is somewhere in Ohio. As a result of his trip into the Buckeye state the man who trapped the McNamara brothers expects to obtain information regarding a secret fund of $1,000 a month placed at the disposal of John J. McNamara by the executive committee of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers.

This fund, it is charged, was entered as "for organization purposes," but Burns alleges that no accounting was ever demanded from McNamara as to how it was expended.

Accountants and stenographers that proceeded today with the examination of records and correspondence of the iron-workers union in the federal grand jury chambers were seeking evidence, it was learned, as to the exact disposition of all funds of the association.

Seek Light on Hundred Explosions

According to the information compiled by the National Erectors' Association; 100 explosions directed against employers of non-union iron workers occurred between August, 1905, and December 1910, in many states, and it is the details of the organization and the financing arrangements involved that the United States authorities seek to uncover.

Specifically, the federal inquiry is as to whether or not the statute governing interstate transportation of dynamite has been violated, but since the visit of Detective Burns to this city yesterday it is intimated that prosecutions on more serious charges may follow if the federal grand jury returns indictments against men alleged to have been "higher up" in the McNamara conspiracy.

Federal Officer Co-operates

Plans further to disclose the identity of these persons were formulated by Mr. Burns and United States District Attorney Charles W. Miller, and today operatives in the employ of Burns and the National Erectors' Association were active in several quarters of the investigation here.

Frank M. Ryan, who now appears as a central figure in the investigation because he is the president of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, was sought in vain by many inquirers today. "We have no idea where he is," said H. S. Hockin, acting for John J. McNamara as secretary-treasurer of the organization. "I have a letter from Mr. Ryan dated Atlanta, Ga., last Friday night, saying he would leave there that night, but was undecided whether to go to New Orleans or to Chicago. Since, I have heard nothing. Until Mr. Ryan returns no call will be issued for a meeting of the executive board to deal with the McNamara situation."

December Weather Will Be Severely Cold

December will be a very cold month. 1st to 2nd, cold wave. 3rd to 4th, pleasant. On the 5th great storm will form over the Mississippi Valley and move southeastward. 5th to 7th, blizzard over the Western States, which is likely to turn to rain over the eastern part of the country. 8th to 9th, cold wave. 10th to 11th, pleasant. On the 12th a storm will form over the lakes and move rapidly eastward. 13th to 14th, rain and snow. 15th to 16th, very cold over all the Northern States. 22nd to 24th, cold wave. 25th to 26th, cold and clear. On the 27th a storm will form over the Gulf States. 28th to 29th, snow. 30th to 31st, very cold.

Hogs Die by the Thousand in Ky.

Henderson, Ky., Dec. 2.—The sudden death of about 3,000 hogs in the last week from a disease similar to cholera, but declared by veterinarians not to be such, has baffled farmers in Henderson, Webster and Union counties.

The blood of the entire body of the hogs, it has been found, by dissecting a half dozen of the pokers, congests in the lungs.

Worm eaten corn due to the late crop, is held responsible for the mysterious disease.

It is feared horses may die similarly if the epidemic is not checked.

Lively as a Boy.

If you are tired, run down, have no appetite, get a bottle of Yucatan Chilli Tonic. A few doses will set you up—give you a boy's appetite—make you strong and lively as a twelve-year-old. Purifies the blood and strengthens the system. 50c a bottle at the St. Bernard Mining Co., Incorporated, Drug Department.

THANKSGIVING DANCE IS SUCCESSFUL

Was Held at Webb's Hall and Well Attended by Visitors.

The Thanksgiving dance given at Webb's Hall by two of our well known boys of the town, Gilbert Long and Arthur Vinson, was well attended by out of town visitors, which read as follows: Misses Ollie and Brizens, of Evansville, Miss Hattie Vaughn, of Sebree, Misses Jennie Hamilton and Ruth Bamberger, of Owensboro, Miss Annie Leahy, of Howell, Albert Noe and Miss Zena Shanks, of Madisonville, and several others, which for lack of space we fail to mention.

Every one reports of having a nice time, the dance started about nine o'clock and broke about two in the morning. The music was to be furnished by a Hopkinsville orchestra, but owing to the lateness of the Dixie Flyer failed to be here.

The orchestra to be furnished was a four piece band, and in order not to disappoint the visitors three pieces were secured and very nice music was furnished.

Miss Kathleen Corey was the guest of Miss Mary Frances Ashby Sunday.

BEATTIE BURIED AT SECRET HOUR.
 Grave of Wife Murderer Covered with Flowers

Richmond, Va., Dec. 2.—The body of Henry Clay Beattie, jr. was buried Sunday morning shortly after sunrise in Maury cemetery and a mound of chrysanthemums and immortelles covered the new-made grave. A brief service was held at the residence, only the members of the family and the eight boyhood friends of Beattie, who had been chosen by him as pallbearers, attending. Rev. John F. Fix, who prayed with the condemned man just before he was led to the death chamber, read the service of the Presbyterian church. The grief of the aged father was pitiful. To guard against any possible annoyance the exact hour of the funeral was kept secret. After it became known that the funeral had been held, great crowds visited the cemetery where two mounted policemen guarded the Beattie lot. There was no disorder or attempt to take away the flowers.

Winter Egg Failure

One reason why hens fail to lay in winter is because they do not have access to green feed. We usually sow a patch of wheat or rye near the chicken house for winter feed. Every bright day the fowls run on the green feed. They also get all vegetables we have to spare from the table. Raw potatoes, also tomatoes, contain an acid that prevents disease in fowls. Fowls that have access to plenty of green feed and vegetables seldom have disease, but if compelled to live on grain and water during the winter months, it impairs the digestion and leaves them easy victims of contagious diseases. The drought this season dried up all vegetables and for six weeks or two months fowls lived without green feed in this county disease was prevalent and few farmers escaped.—Missouri Ruralist.

SUIT FILED AGAINST J. B. RAMSEY

Administrator for Settlement in $100,000
Estate by Mrs. Ella Rakestraw

A Special from Dixon Ky. says: A suit involving the settlement of a one-hundred thousand dollar estate, in which Mrs. Ella Rakestraw, has is the plaintiff and John B. Ramsey is the defendant, was filed here in the circuit court.

Mrs. Rakestraw states that the defendant, Ramsey, who is the administrator of the estate of her late husband, James M. Rakestraw, has failed and refused to make any settlement of his accounts as such administrator, and alleges that he has "loaned out a large part of the money and collected the interest thereon and has appropriated the same to his own use and benefit, and the remainder of said money he has used to various speculations for his own use and benefit," except that he has made certain payments aggregating the sum of $32,344.39.

She says she is entitled to recover six per cent interest on the sum of $40,000 from the time it went into the defendant's hands.

ALL KENTUCKIANS INVITED

To Attend The Inauguration of Gov. McCreary on Dec. 12

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 2.—The Citizens' Executive Committee, in charge of the preparations for the inauguration of Governor-elect James B. McCreary, has decided not to issue any individual invitations but regarding the occasion as one of general public interest has issued a general invitation to all Kentuckians as follows:

Anniversary Invitation

"The inauguration of James B. McCreary as governor and Edward J. Mc Dermott as lieutenant governor will take place at the capitol, Frankfort, at noon on Tuesday, December 12, 1911.

"All Kentuckians, regardless of party affiliation, are most cordially invited to attend the ceremonies incident to the inauguration.

"Clubs and other bodies that wish to participate should notify the executive committee as soon as possible in order that they may be assigned positions in the parade.

"S. French Hoke, Chm.

"Elwood Hamilton,

"Percy Haly,

"John W. Milam,

"R. G. Williams,

Citizen's Executive Committee of Frankfort"

"Best on Earth"

This is the verdict of R. J. Howell, Tracy, O., who bought Foley's Honey and Tar Compound for his wife. "Her case was the worst I have ever seen, and looked like a sure case of consumption. Her lungs were sore and she coughed almost incessantly and her voice was hoarse and weak. Foley's Honey and Tar Compound brought relief at once and less than three bottles effected a complete cure." Without opiates or harmful drugs of any kind Foley's Honey and Tar Compound stops coughs and cures colds. Do not accept any substitute. Sold by St. Bernard Mining Co. Incorporated, Drug Department.

Headaches always indicate constipation in a dangerous form, that may result in other extremely serious ailments—sometimes even Bright's Disease and Appendicitis. Our Carlsbad's German Liver Powder acts on the liver, the real cause of constipation—a few doses entirely remove the trouble—insure a lasting cure—never fails—guaranteed—if you have headaches, get a bottle today from the St. Bernard Mining Co., Incorporated, Drug Department. 25c a bottle.

Mark of Insincerity.

Beware of him who meets you with a friendly smile, and in the midst of a cordial salutation seeks to avoid your glance.

Wins Fight For Life

It was a long and bloody battle for life that was waged by James B. Mershon, of Newark, N. J., of which he writes: "I had lost much blood from lung hemorrhages, and was very weak and rundown. For eight months I was unable to work. Death seemed close at my heels, when I began, three weeks ago, to use Dr. King's New Discovery. But it has helped me greatly. It is doing all that you claim." For weak, sore lungs, obstinate coughs, stubborn colds, hoarseness, is grippe, asthma, hay-fever or any throat or lung trouble is supreme. 50c & $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by all druggists.

INTERESTING EVENTS IN CHICAGO

NINETEENTH NATIONAL IRRIGATION CONGRESS

DECEMBER, 5 TO 9.

The object and purpose of this Congress can best be expressed in its motto, "Save the forests, store the floods, reclaim the deserts, make homes on the land," to which might be added "drain the swamp and make homes on the lands."

There are in the United States 75,000,000 acres of swamp land, non-productive, a menace to health, and a deterrent to immigration. 75,000,000 acres divided into 40-acre farms means homes for 1,875,000 families, or approximately 10,000,000 of our citizenship. This land when reclaimed will be as healthful as land that has always been dry, and will be the most productive of all lands, because it is composed of the rich soil brought down by the river, deposited and mixed with the decayed vegetation for centuries.

On account of the diversified ownership and state complications it would seem that the United States Government is logically the authority to redeem these lands along the lines pursued in the reclamation of the arid lands of the West.

The results of irrigation of the arid lands of the Far West, and the possibilities of the drainage of the swamp lands of the Great South, and elsewhere, will be given particular attention in an elaborate program that has been planned for this congress. Delegates from all parts of the country, as well as foreign representatives, have been invited, and a goodly attendance is expected.

British Capital for Turkey.
Gold, iron, copper, sulphur, coal, chrome, etc., are known to exist in different parts of the Turkish province of Hodeidah, which, in the opinion of the British consul there, will be thrown open to foreign exploitation in the near future, especially after the proposed railway is completed. This may, in time, provide an opening for British enterprise.

THE LION AND THE LAMB

By ANNA PHILLIPS SEE

(Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.)

Billy Lamb was the handsomest man in college and the wealthiest. He was also the most unpopular with the authorities, owing to neglect of his studies and a frolicsome disregard of college rules. In addition to his other crimes Billy was a ladies' man and traveled extensively on the trolley lines between Athens and the two neighboring women's colleges.

One day Mrs. Veriton, wife of the new professor, telephoned the Phi Tau house, in which Billy lived. The connection was poor, and the janitor thought she asked for Mr. Lamb. Billy came to the phone. With difficulty he comprehended that he was being invited to afternoon tea on Sunday to see "your friend, Mary Armitage, and some other young ladies." William Lamb was surprised. He did not know Mrs. Veriton, who had lately come to town; he had never heard of Mary Armitage. However, here was an opportunity to meet girls, and he seized it.

On Sunday Mrs. Veriton opened her door to a resplendent youth. Her face told Billy Lamb that he was a stranger to her and the painful fact that she was not expecting him to tea. With his most engaging smile he reminded her of the invitation she had given him by telephone. The lady looked blank and asked his name.

"Lamb," replied Billy, looking as innocent as his namesake.

"What is your fraternity?"

"Phi Tau,"

Mrs. Veriton laughed. "Well, this is funny. When I telephoned you I thought I was talking to Reginald Lyon, a friend of mine. Don't you remember how hard it was for us to understand each other?"

Billy murmured sadly that it was all his mistake, and Mrs. Veriton insisted that she had been stupid, and she was very sorry it had happened so. Then she awaited the young man's departure, but he lingered with a pained look of disappointment. Finally she said: "I shall be one man short, and—won't you come in and meet the young ladies, any way?"

"It would be a great pleasure, but I don't think I ought to, under the circumstances," answered the diplomatic youth.

Mrs. Veriton was impulsive. "Do come in," she urged.

With seeming reluctance the uninvited guest entered the drawing room. Here he was introduced to several other girls, and to Mary Armitage, who, in five minutes, was the only one in the room for him. Then—Billy Lamb fell really and truly in love with a pretty, timid creature, who had never in her life been out from under a chaperon's eye. No college girl's liberty had been her lot. Her father, who had brought her up, believed in the sheltered life for his daughter, and marriage to a husband of her own choosing. All this demure Mary confided to Billy Lamb as they sat in a corner and played with their tea-cups.

"And oh, Mr. Lamb," she added pathetically, "my future husband is here in this college, now." Her hearer started. "Father has just written to Cousin Kate Veriton that he has promised me to the son of one of his friends and that this son is a member of the senior class."

Billy looked his amazement; he was too astonished to speak.

"Promise me you'll not tell, Mr. Lamb—not a soul? Well, Cousin Kate and I both think that Reginald Lyon is the man."

"Great Scott!" exclaimed her companion in genuine horror. "Lyon's a perfect lady, always afraid of mauling his clothes. He doesn't know enough to do anything but smoke cigarettes. Miss Armitage, you mustn't be coerced into marrying such an apology for a man."

Her eyes grew big at the mere suggestion of opposition to her parent. "You don't know my father. I shall have to do as he says," was her resigned reply.

The party was breaking up and Billy rose reluctantly, whispering with magnificent audacity: "Don't worry. Perhaps we can find a way out of it." Mary Armitage gave the captive Lamb such a look of admiring confidence that it went to his head and kept him awake half the night.

When William Lamb, with amazing promptness, came to make his party call, he found that the ladies were "not at home." Mrs. Veriton had been enlightened by her friends as to the depravity of this gilded senior. She said to Mary: "I hear that he was arrested and actually spent a night in jail for speeding that five-thousand-dollar automobile of his. I'm very sorry you have met him. All you can do now is to ignore him as much as possible."

"Yes, Cousin Kate," Mary answered dutifully, and there the matter rested so far as Mrs. Veriton was concerned.

The June days passed in a gay round, in which Billy Lamb saw from afar his adored one always guarded by her cousin and Reginald Lyon. This youth was paying Miss Armitage such attention that the boys christened her "the Lyon-Tamer." No girl, or any one else, had ever before charmed the dollars from this rich—but stingy—young man.

Commencement was at hand and William Lamb's name was in the list of graduates, much to the surprise of the faculty. No one knew exactly how it had come about. The fact was affording him great satisfaction, as he sat one afternoon on a log in the woods near the golf links. He seemed to be expecting some one, for he kept his eye on the path that led to the town. At the glimmer of a pink dress he sprang forward.

"Dearest," he cried to Mary Armitage, taking her hands.

"Oh, Billy, had news! Father is coming to take me home," she exclaimed almost tearfully.

"Jerusalem! and my dad arrives this evening to make sure of my diploma."

"What shall we do, Billy?"

He kissed her again as an aid to thought. After a time he announced: "Well, I guess your father has forced my hand. Mary, we'll be married this afternoon and get ahead of the game."

"This afternoon! Oh, I couldn't," she faltered.

Billy looked at her sternly and demanded: "Do you want to be thrown to the Lyon?"

"No, no. But don't you have to get hams or something before—"

"A license, you mean? Certainly. I thought we might need one in a hurry, so here it is." He waved a paper before her eyes.

"Now, Mary, I'll have my machine at the crossroads in fifteen minutes. In fifteen more we'll be in Wilton looking for an accommodating minister. Brace up, dear. Everything will be all right as soon as we are married."

One hour later the deed was done, and Mr. and Mrs. William Lamb were dashing down the main street of Wilton, dodging trolley cars, vehicles and pedestrians. The bridegroom was intoxicated with happiness. This was truly a joy ride with the only girl, now his, sitting beside him. At the sharp turn by the railroad station, where travelers for Athens take the trolley, he nearly ran down two elderly gentlemen, who cast wrathful glances at the speeding automobile.

"Why, hello, Sonny?" yelled the stouter man, in a voice like a megaphone.

Billy stopped. "Well, if there isn't the governor," he cried joyfully. "Hop in, dad. I didn't expect you so early."

"Father," gasped Mary in a frightened voice to the thin, elderly gentleman. At that word William Lamb knew that a crisis was approaching in his affairs.

The fathers climbed into the automobile and sat each by his child. The chauffeur drove the machine at a pace pleasing to elderly parents, but his mind was racing at a seventy-mile gait. His father opened the conversation. "Armitage and I are very old friends," he remarked. "I stumbled on him coming up here."

"Dad," said Billy, confidentially as man to man, "you've always been good to me and you mustn't go back on me this time."

"What scrape are you in now?" inquired his experienced father.

"Miss Armitage and I were married about an hour ago. That's all."

Mr. Lamb faced about toward the father and daughter behind him and roared: "Armitage, what do you think these young idiots did this afternoon? Ran away and got married!"

Mary turned pale and shrank into the corner of the seat. Her father looked at her without a word, his stern face becoming red, then purple, with suppressed emotion. Suddenly he seized her trembling arm. "How dare you, Mary Armitage!" he cried, bursting with laughter. "How dare you run away and marry the man I had picked out for you!"

Gun Under Pillow Good Fire Alarm.

While W. H. Richmond and his wife went to the barn near his home at the Nisbet place in the Bloomfield settlement, five miles from Macon, Ga., burglars went into his house and after taking a fine gold watch set fire to the bedding in one room and hastily made their get-away from the place.

The robbery occurred about daylight the other day. As Mr. Richmond and his wife milked the cows he heard two pistol shots, which made a muffled sound. Rushing to the house, he discovered the hedging and part of the interior of the room on fire. The burglars had escaped. A barrel of water setting on the north afforded the means of extinguishing the fire, which was rapidly spreading over the residence.

The firing of the two pistol shots was accomplished when the heat of the ignited bedding came in contact with the thin barrel of an automatic revolver lying under the pillow.

Vitality of Seeds.

The Isle of Flowers in the Strand, now to disappear at the bidding of a French building syndicate, is accomplishing wonders in developing the imagination of our amateur botanists. The theory that some of the flowers now glorifying the house-breakers' debris are the sudden offspring of seed blown about in the year of the great fire, captivates the fancy, if it does not appeal to the judgment. Although we may put on one side the table of the vitality of seeds taken from a mummy case, there is warrant for assuming long life for certain seeds. It has, for instance, been placed beyond doubt that melon seeds will grow when forty years old, while maize and rye show equal staying power. The sensitive plant will sprout from sixty-year-old seeds and the kidney bean at the age of 100.—London Chronicle.

Side Lights on History.

James Watt was perfecting his steam engine. "I want to see the wheels go round," he said. The engine went to the scrap pile long ago, but those words will live through the ages.

CURRENT WIT & HUMOR

Grew Suddenly Worse.

"You're not looking very well," said the head of the firm addressing the office boy. "I think you had better take a day off."

"I can't afford it. My mother needs all I can earn every week."

"Oh, never mind that. You will get your full pay, just the same. I wouldn't think of docking you for being away on account of illness."

"Gee, but I feel bad. I'm almost sure I won't be able to come to work tomorrow either."

POUND ON SOMETHING.

Mr. Closefast—Who is that pounding on the piano?

Mrs. Closefast—The cook. We can't afford to buy beefsteak any more, and she has to have some exercise.

Seasonable.

The leaves are turning scarlet. The scenery's simply grand; And soon the wormy chestnut Will be roasting on the stand.

Valued Ancestors.

"Some of my ancestors came over in the Mayflower," said Miss Cayenne.

"So you cherish a certain pride of ancestry?"

"Yes. It's something to have some relations of whom your family speaks kindly, even if you do have to go back a few generations."

A Cure by Proxy.

Doctor—What your husband needs, Mrs. Naggett, is a complete rest. I have prescribed a sleeping draft.

Mrs. Naggett—Very well, doctor; when shall I give it to him?

Doctor—Don't give it to him at all. Take it yourself!—London Throne.

Curiosity.

"I never saw such curiosity as that woman shows," said Mrs. Scorer.

"Why, she spends most of her time playing bridge."

"Yes. And I'd rather go through life not knowing what the trump is than ask as often as she does."

THE SPEEDER.

"Has he taken up automobilism as a fad?"

"No; as a frenzy."

Festive Mary.

Then Mary got a little jag Which made her holler "Whee!" Although I very seldom brag, There are no flies on me."

Extremes to Be Avoided.

"The man who tells hard-luck stories loses friends."

"Yes," replied Mr. Growcher; "and he does the man who tries to make you envious by bragging about his good luck."

Docked for Absence.

Mrs. McCarthy—Yer envelope is 50 cents short this week, Mike.

McCarthy—Yes, Mary Ann. We had an explosion on Tuesday, an' the foreman docked me for the time I was in the air.

A Proof.

"That prima donna has a velvet voice."

"So I should judge by her pile."

Cynical Simcox.

Judge Charles H. Curey said at a recent banquet in Portland, Ore.: "My Americanism is proud, not apologetic. I believe in the American people's integrity. I don't take the view of my people that Lawyer Simcox took of his profession."

"Lawyer Simcox, practicing in Gresham, where I went to college, said one day to a client:

"The man called you a liar, eh?"

"Yes, sir; he did."

"But did he call you a liar in many words?"

"Well, sir, he called me a lawyer."

"That is sufficient," said Lawyer Simcox. "You are bound to get him damages."

Of More Importance.

Betty may not be very worldly wise, but she is practical. She knows enough to take a common sense view of things sentimental as well as material. So, when she listened to the proposal of the young man she is fond of, she couldn't help saying what she did.

"If you reject me, Betty dear," he urged, in a final appeal, "I shall never, never love another. It will be the end."

"And if I accept you," she asked, "does the same thing hold good?"

Retribution.

The poet Wordsworth, stricken in years, had been put on the pension list.

"If that means," he said, "that they want me to stop writing, they'll have to make it more than $1,500 a year."

So he kept on writing, and a year later the blow fell.

They made him poet laureate.

Invoking the Law.

"Where are you going in such a hurry, old man?"

"I am going to consult a lawyer about having my wife indicted for making incendiary speeches."

"You don't mean it?"

"Yes, I do. She insists on my getting up and starting a fire every morning."

Nothing Serious.

"I see your wife had to be carried to her carriage yesterday."

"Yes, she had to be carried."

"What does the doctor say?"

"We have no doctor. The dressmaker says she made the gown a trifle too tight."

Common Complaint.

Farmer—According to the papers, the world is full of uprisings.

Housewife—Yes; it seems to be contagious. I notice that even the bottom of your berry boxes are affected.—Judge.

SURELY.

She—I wonder who wrote "Down in the Coal Mine?"

He—One of the minor poets, I guess.

The First Step.

Who would apply The Golden Rule, Must ever try To keep quite cool.

Which One.

"I hear young Jaggies is drinking nowadays. Is he much of a lawyer, anyhow?"

"I should judge from what you say yourself he has considerable experience at the bar."

Small Ideas.

"Your son seems to be a good boy."

"Yes; but I'm afraid he'll never get very high. He has small ideas; seems to think it is necessary to work for a living."

Clashing Interests.

"What we want is economy," said one statesman.

"I thought you wanted appropriations," replied the other.

"I want both; economy for your constituents and appropriations for mine."

They Had Clocks.

Salesman—You'll find these good wearing socks, sir.

Customer—Rather loud, ain't they? Salesman—Yes, sir; but that keeps you feet from going to sleep.

Rightful Position.

"Do you want that picture of the legislative knockout to go at the top of the page?"

"Certainly; why not? Isn't it an up-or-cut?"

A Brute.

She—Dearie, isn't your little wife the dearest thing in life to you?

He—I can answer truly, darling, yes, you are the most expensive of my few luxuries.

DECISION WILL EFFECT COAL BUSINESS

Judge Henson Trying Important Case at Morganfield Against I. C.

Morganfield, Ky., Nov. 30.—An important case is now being tried by Judge Henson. It is the suit for damages brought against the I. C. railway company, by the Drury Coal Co. Damages are asked on the grounds that the I. C. failed to provide cars for the coal company.

The importance of the case is far reaching, not because of the amount involved, but because of the effect it will have on the coal business. It is contended by the plaintiff that under the law the railroad must furnish the coal company with cars or be liable for the damages suffered. The suit may finally have to be settled by the United States supreme court as the provisions made by the interstate commerce law will be brought into the case. Drury & Drury represent the coal company, Allen & Miller and H. D. Hughes the railroad.

Simon Stephens Killed By Train

Simon Stephens, age 28, a well known townsman of Central City was instantly killed Friday afternoon, when he was run over by an I. C. passenger train, his body was out all to pieces. He was the brother-in-law of W. P. Scott, postmaster at Dawson Springs.

MAY PROVE FATAL

When Will Earlington People Learn the Importance of It?

Buckache is only a simple thing at first; But if you find 'tis from the kidneys;

That serious kidney troubles may follow; That Bright's disease may be the fatal end.

You will gladly profit by the following experience. 'Tis the statement of an Earlington citizen.

John Davenport, Wilson St., Earlington, Ky., says: I suffered more severely from kidney trouble than words can describe. My back was so sore and lame that I could not do any work for days at a time. The kidney secretions were scanty and there was a constant pain in my back which completely blinded me at times. I often became dizzy and dark spots appeared before my eyes. Nothing helped me until I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at the St. Bernard Drug Store. I felt better after taking them a few days and from that time on I improved steadily until I was well."

He declared that the "interests" never intended to support the democrats in the presidential election of 1904, that they were always for Roosevelt.
